ARDIAN, BERTRAND LETARTRE AND THIERRY LETARTRE ENTER INTO EXCLUSIVE NEGOTIATIONS WITH ECOLAB TO SELL LABORATOIRES ANIOS

Paris, June 29, 2016 – The consortium comprising Bertrand and Thierry Letartre, descendants of the founders, and Ardian, the independent private investment company, has announced that it has entered into exclusive negotiations with Ecolab to sell Laboratoires Anios, a leading European company in hospitals and clinics disinfection and a key player for industrial, lodging and catering facilities.

Founded in 1898, Laboratoires Anios specialises in disinfection solutions for the healthcare sector, including hospitals, clinics and medical professions. The group is also active in the food processing, cosmetic, pharmaceutical, lodging and catering sectors. Present in 80 countries, the company generated revenues of around €220 million in 2015.

Over the last three years, growth at Laboratoires Anios has accelerated sharply, in particular through the purchase of Soluscope (France) in 2014, followed by the acquisition of majority stakes in Endoclear (Brazil) and Deren (Turkey) in 2015. Most recently, the acquisition of the hospital disinfection businesses of Inibsa (Spain) and Hysis (France) in 2016. Company has thus grown revenues by more than 20% and its workforce by around 50%, with Laboratoires Anios currently employing some 700 people around the world, of which almost 540 in France.

The combination project reflects the shared desire of Ardian and of Bertrand and Thierry Letartre, to find a long-term, strategic shareholder to continue Anios' growth. The partnership with Ecolab will enable Anios to accelerate its international growth, and strengthen the positions of the new Group in Europe in the hygiene and disinfection market for hospitals and clinics.

Bertrand and Thierry Letartre, CEO and deputy CEO of Laboratoires Anios, said: "We are very happy about the prospects offered by partnering with Ecolab. The strength of the Anios brand, combined with the global presence of Ecolab, will enable us to accelerate our development. It will also be an opportunity to offer new and exciting career prospects for Anios employees, and to offer our clients new innovative solutions. This will be a new chapter in the history of Anios, after the partnership with Ardian, which has been a real pleasure and has supported the strong growth that the company has experienced over recent years."

Philippe Poletti, Head of Ardian Mid Cap Buyout, added: "I would like to thank Bertrand and Thierry Letartre for the confidence they have placed in Ardian over these last few years. Our respective teams have worked together fantastically well, enabling Anios to fulfil its development programme. This transaction reflects our ability to work alongside family entrepreneurs in ambitious growth projects."

The proposed transaction is still subject to the approval of the anti-trust authorities. Staff representatives at Laboratoires Anios have been informed and are currently being consulted for their opinion on the proposed transaction, which could take place by the end of the year.
